"Where there's a WILL, there's a way."

- William Meyer

This material is supported by the USDA Cooperative State Research, Education and Extension Service, under special project number 2002-41590-01354.

Who are we?

A joint partnership promoting independence for people in agriculture who want to continue farming and ranching with a disabling condition

What do we do?

Recommend ways to remain active in agriculture by:

- Modifying farm and ranch tasks
- Adapting equipment
- Educating on Injury Prevention
- Providing Financial Guidance
- Identifying Funding Sources
- Coordinating Community Services
- Increasing Farmstead Accessibility

Men and women with disabilities can continue to do what they love... farm and ranch.

Examples of health conditions we serve:

- Stroke
- Arthritis
- Diabetes
- Amputation
- Orthopedic Injury
- Spinal Cord Injury
- Back Pain or Injury
- Mobility Limitation
- Vision or Hearing Loss
- Traumatic Brain Injury
- Respiratory & Cardiac Problems

I would definitely recommend AgrAbility to farm and ranch folks who have disabilities.
